REV. H. A. GREY is in receipt of a letter from a former settler near Calgary, who since leaving Alberta has spent some time in South Africa, and Tasmania, and now writes from New Zealand. Barring climate he nowhere finds the conditions as favorable for the man of small means as in Alberta, and expects to come back in the spring. Of New Zealand he says there is abundance of good land, but in open country it requires a fortune to start as such land costs up to $40 an acre. In the bush it takes 20 years to make a farm.

A PARTY comprising John F. Gibbs, W. C. Gibbs, J. King, E. Peterson, and Arthur Healy arrived from the Yukon on Monday by way of the Landing. The Gibbs Bros. had returned from a point about 100 miles above Fort Graham on the Findlay. They intend to go back to the Findlay with the Potts party when they return. This party had heard nothing of a man having been killed by a bear near Fort Graham as reported by J. S. S. Coffee, but it had been reported that the body or skeleton of a man was found between St. John and the Nelson river.

G. W. HISLOP, representing the San Francisco branch of the Gilbert Manufacturing Co., arrived last night on a business trip. Mr. Hislop was manager of the H. B. Co. store at Edmonton for several years, and was well and favorably known here. San Francisco seems to have agreed with Mr. Hislop and he with San Francisco. He goes shortly to Australia to open business for the Gilbert Co. there. Mr. Hislop has done well in San Francisco. His brother W. T. Hislop, formerly of Edmonton, is also in San Francisco and doing well.

The Toronto Star threatens that sometime some Yukon official who has been "slandered" by the eastern papers will come down and thrash his traducers. The Star may make its mind easy. All the important officials who have been "slandered" are already down. And from all reports are not likely to go back in an official capacity. No slanders or accusations so far as heard from have been directed against the men who have succeeded them, and who are now administering the affairs of the Yukon. The Star should join the don't worry club. But possibly the know-nothings, of which the Free Press is grand high priest, would be more congenial.

ELECTION CELEBRATION.

The result of the election in Edmonton district having been finally decided in favor of Mr. McCauley by a handsome majority, a number of his friends and supporters expressed their satisfaction by a serenade and torchlight procession on Monday evening last. The Edmonton band, under the leadership of R. Hookley, turned out and after playing a number of appropriate airs at his residence, Mr. McCauley was placed in a buggy, a procession formed and to the music of the band and the waving of torches, he was escorted to the centre of town at the Alberta corner, where he delivered a short address, thanking his friends for their support and giving assurances of his continued endeavors to deserve that support.

MARKET SITE.

At the special council meeting held on Monday afternoon to consider the report of the special committee appointed to report on the market site offered by St. George Jellett, all members were present except Councillor Hourston. The committee, Messrs. Ross, Hummerstone and Jackson, reported recommending that the offer be accepted.

Mr. Hummerstone produced an offer addressed to himself from P. Heimnick of certain property on the west side of Queen's avenue for a market site, and advocated acceptance of Mr. Heimnick's offer.

The report of the committee in favor of the site offered by St. George Jellett was adopted. The vote standing Ross, McLeod Jackson for, Picard, Hummerstone against.

It was decided to prepare a by-law for submission to the ratepayers at once.

THE PLEBISCITE

The full returns of the plebiscite are in at last and show a victory for prohibition almost all along the line. Six out of seven provinces have declared for prohibition by unquestionable, and in some cases by overwhelming majorities; and in the whole country prohibition has a majority of over 13,000. It is true that the turn out of voters was not as large as would have been desirable, or as the importance of the issue at stake required. Still, all things considered, in most cases a fair vote was polled—a vote large enough to be fairly taken as an indication of the desire of the people, so far as that desire can be reached by means of a popular vote. In the case of the Maritime provinces, Ontario and Manitoba this vote was a repetition of a former expression of opinion, so that whether the vote is large or small it must be accepted as definite so far as these provinces are concerned.

While it is desirable that there should be no misunderstanding as to the extent to which the people of Canada have declared for prohibition, neither should there be any mistake as to the extent to which they have declared against it. The chiefly French speaking province of Quebec has declared against it by nearly as large an actual majority, and a much larger proportionate majority, than the other provinces have declared for it. Leaving out of calculation the province of Quebec, the country is unquestionably in favor of prohibition, and the vote would be ample justification for prohibitory legislation; but taking in that province the prohibition majority is cut down so low that the question of accepting such a small majority as a basis for the drastic legislation of a prohibitory law becomes at least arguable. It is not possible to use the overwhelming majorities in favor of prohibition in the seven provinces as a reason for enforcing national prohibition. If the large majorities for it in these provinces are a reason for its enforcement there, the larger majority against it in Quebec is just as good a reason against its enforcement there. National prohibition must stand or fall on its support by a majority of the nation, not on the majority given by one part of the nation.

There is a further feature of the case in this connection that it may be worth while to dwell on. A law is only a law in so far as it is enforced. The only real question in regard to a prohibitory law is that of its enforcement. All other questions regarding it have practically passed out of the realm of argument. Our laws are made by our legislators, but they are enforced through our magistracy and our jury system. The essential principle of our magistracy and jury systems is that our magistrates and jurors shall be representative of respectable public opinion. If respectable public opinion as represented on the magistrate's bench or in the jury box is opposed to a certain law either in principle or in detail, that law thereby becomes difficult or impossible of enforcement. This is a simple statement of fact which is within the knowledge of everyone who chooses to give the matter a moment's consideration, and yet which seems to escape the notice of a great many people. To mend this condition of affairs would involve a complete change in our system of administration of justice, which is not at present in prospect. This is where prohibition has always been weak in the cities. It is a fact—to be deplored, but nevertheless a fact—that public opinion in the cities is not generally in favor of prohibition. That being the case the enforcement of prohibition in the cities of a prohibition district is always more lax than in the surrounding country; and that laxity is perpetually held up as a proof that prohibition cannot prohibit.

In the case of the province of Quebec there is a very large body of people amongst whom, on the showing of the returns, public opinion not only does not favor, but is strongly against prohibition. It is a plain fact that the enforcement of prohibition under such circumstances throughout the province of Quebec is an impossibility. Under the scheme of confederation the administration of civil justice is entirely in the hands of the provinces. With a people overwhelmingly against prohibition and having the leverage of the control of their provincial government, its enforcement in that province becomes utterly impracticable.

The situation then contains two difficulties. 1st. The question whether the national majority is sufficient to justify the enactment of a national prohibitory law. 2nd. The plain and unquestionable fact that throughout a part of the Dominion comprising nearly a third of the total population such a law, if enacted, must fail of enforcement.

What course the government will suggest that parliament shall take in the face of these difficulties it is impossible to say. They have been guided by a desire to satisfy the aspirations of prohibitionists in the submission of the question to popular vote. Having gone so far in that direction it is natural that they should wish to give effect to the desire expressed. At the same time there is no profit in ignoring the fact that prohibition which failed to prohibit amongst one-third of the people could not effectually or for long prohibit amongst the other two-thirds; especially when in that other two-thirds the difficulty of enforcing the law in the cities would be great enough in any case.

Prohibitionists are in a strong position to demand national prohibition. But they must either take national prohibition which will not nationally prohibit, and will therefore ultimately discredit the prohibition cause, or they must wait until public opinion in Quebec has been so won over as to give a reasonable chance for the enforcement of the law there—and this might mean forever. There is another course open to them however. With the provinces rests the licensing power, and therefore naturally should rest the power to prohibit. With the provinces rests the administration of civil justice, under which the enforcement of a prohibitory law would come. There is no question about the condition of public opinion on this question in most of the provinces. At present what may be called a flaw in the constitution takes from the provinces the right to prohibit. Let the constitution be amended in that particular—as it can be,—so as to place the liquor traffic unquestionably and unreservedly in the control of the provinces, and there will then be no hindrance to the experiment of provincial prohibition under conditions which would be much more favorable than can possibly attend a present attempt at national prohibition.

THE EDMONTON TRAIL

The Vancouver World has an interview in a recent issue with Thomas Lundy, who recently arrived in that city from Fort Graham. Mr. Lundy left Edmonton in company with Messrs. Hopkins and McDougall, on March 6th, '98. His report of the trail is directly contradictory to those hitherto published in the coast papers regarding it. The World exhibits a spirit of fair play in publishing an interview of this character that is largely to its credit, and relieves it from the charge of narrowness and prejudice which lies against some of its contemporaries. Mr. Lundy was more than pleased with the appearance of the agricultural region around Edmonton, and with the scenery and agricultural possibilities of the Peace River region. Of the trail Mr. Lundy says: "There is only one high road to the Klondike for cattle, and that is this route. You can simply herd them from place to place right through, without any of the expense of taking them by steamer up the coast and allowing for losses in landing, etc. A Mr. Lang took in a lot of cattle this summer. Mr. Jones, who also took in a herd, drove his cattle from below Calgary to Edmonton and then through to Fort Graham in good condition, actually averaging 12 miles a day on the whole trip. The steers dressed tipped the scales at from 750 to 1,100 pounds. He took part of his herd through to Sylvester's Landing. I think $10,000 would be necessary to make the Edmonton road a good one for cattle, so that they would have no trouble in starting from Edmonton in the early spring and reaching Klondike nicely in October." Mr. Lundy reports plenty of game through the mountains.

THE STAR'S KICK

The Montreal Star fills a page with the woes of Capt. Cadell, on his recent trip to the Klondike by the Mackenzie route. The captain, who will be remembered in Edmonton, having resided here for some months in the early part of last winter, has got back to Montreal. His trip was—to him—a succession of horrors, a night mare, which loses nothing from the descriptive powers of the Star reporter. The fact that such a tenderfoot as the captain's complaints show him to be, could make the round trip in a single season is proof enough that the Edmonton route by way of the Mackenzie is all that was ever claimed for it, or that any man of sound judgment would expect it to be. It was never advertised as a Pullman car or Empress line route, and nothing less apparently would have satisfied the valiant captain; for he found as much fault with the hotels of Dawson and the river steamers on the Yukon as with the Peel river portage. Just to show what kind of a traveller he was and of what nature his complaints are, it may be mentioned that in floating down the Mackenzie, a stream from a mile to two miles wide and very deep, he managed to run his boat aground; and then complains because the people of Edmonton did not tell him there was a shallow at that point. The Star's space was cheap when it found room for seven columns of such silly rot as its alleged interview with Capt. Cadell.

IT DOESN'T PAY

To put off buying a Wrap too long. The real good you get out of a new Cloak, Jacket or Cape is early in the season when the skies are clear and the sidewalks dry.

Later, when the gloom of midwinter settles down upon everything, a warm room holds you and a wardrobe holds your wrap. This weather invites you out of doors, and our beautiful line of Cloaks and Capes invites your investments.

Can you resist all this? Nay, verily. You will find style, fit, durability in every Jacket, not flash and show, but sterling worth.

GOLD ON THE LIARD.

A recent arrival at Vancouver from Telegraph creek, told the World, of that city, that just before leaving to come out he had met a party of men who had been on the headwaters of the Liard river. There were six of them and they had been making from $25 to $50 a day each all through the season. They reported the diggings very good and said that several very good quartz claims had been struck and promised to turn out well.

IN CASSIAR.

J. H. Gillespie, who recently arrived at Vancouver from Cassiar, told the World, of that city, that about 1,800 horses, which for the most part were brought in over the Edmonton trail, are wintering between McDame and Telegraph Creeks.

Mr. Gillespie was guide to a party which last year went to Francis lake at the head of the Liard from Vancouver by way of the Stikine. B. Kenney, who it will be remembered was suffering from scurvy and died at Houle canon, on the Pelly from the shock of seeing Gibney and Baalam drowned, was one of Gillespie's party. He at one time lived in Vancouver, but latterly at Grand Junction, Colorado, where his family resides. His life was insured for $10,000.

Mr. Gillespie located a number of placer and quartz claims on McDame's creek, and located a line of ditch from the third north fork of McDame to the first north fork. This will carry 300 inches of water for eight miles and will allow of the working of the benches on McDame's creek, which are said to be good pay ground.

LACOMBE.

Election day passed off very quietly. It was a good day for ploughing which made the farmers think more about their own immediate requirements.

H. McCully went to Winnipeg last week and from there will go east. Mrs. McCully and family went east on the 3rd, where they intend to make an extended visit. Mr. Olivier is our temporary station agent.

Mr. Huxings has been employed by Mrs. Glass in the store formerly owned by J. Mair.

Mr. Swanson and family have arrived from Belleville, Ontario, and will live in town during the winter.

Mr. Drader, of Ontario, owner of a half section, is moving out here with his family and will commence ranching.

A town well is being bored by the Matthews Co. This is a much needed requirement.

G. Jamieson is building a house on Newton street and will start a tailor shop.

The co-operative store is progressing. There will be apartments for both hardware and dry goods, and on the second flat will be a large hall.

Rev. W. Chegwinn and wife, of South Edmonton, spent last week with Rev. E. J. Chegwinn.

Three car loads of cattle were shipped to Winnipeg on the 29th.

A large quantity of grain is being brought into town at present.

Miss Morphy went to Olds on the 5th, where she will remain until schools re-open.

Mr. Youmans, of Hobbema, made a short visit here last week.

A little daughter arrived at W. Schale's on the 3rd.

The Orangemen's supper on the 5th, was a complete success both financially and socially.

Nov. 7, '98.

AGRICOLA.

Threshing is now nearly completed here; but very little wheat is moving. So much dissatisfaction exists amongst the farmers at the extremely low prices prevailing, also at the unsatisfactory mode of buying at the railway station, that many farmers are feeding their wheat to pigs, finding that more profitable than hauling grain to town.

One of our farmers took a load of fairly good wheat to South Edmonton where he was offered 36c a bushel for it. Declining to accept this he took his load to Ritchie's mill and received for it 43c a bushel. If the buyers of wheat do not act more fairly the farmers of this settlement propose to build an elevator of their own and handle all their own grain for the future, this can be done without any difficulty, as within a radius of five miles square fully 42,000 bushels of grain have been threshed in this settlement.

The new road through a slough opposite section 3, township 54, Range 22, has been completed by Hugh Irwin, road overseer, for $70.

Four hundred and sixty-two yards of grading averaging three feet high has been done and 130 yards of a cut averaging two feet in depth, making a total of 592 yards of heavy grading. Those who did the work are as well satisfied with the wages authorized to be paid by the public works department as the public are with the road; which proves that the present system of expending public money is just, where competent and honest overseers are employed; and as the overseer is elected by the people it is their own fault if they do not see to it that he is a responsible man.

So much depends on the condition of the roads for the farmer, that it is to be hoped that more interest will be taken in future as to the expenditure of government funds on roads. The hills over which the road to South Edmonton passes could be much improved, and if the business men of the town are alive to their own interests they will see that improvements are made thereon without delay.

OMENICA GOLD.

The placer claims on Vital creek, a tributary of the Omenica, have been sold by the individual miners who owned them, to an English syndicate who will work them by hydraulic process. The price paid was $12,000.

A ROAD TO OMENICA.

A purchaser of mining properties in the Omenica district said to the Vancouver World recently: The Government of British Columbia should make a road in there so that men could get in with provisions and then they could open up vast areas of valuable land. It would cost $1,000 a mile for 300 miles from Quenelle to Manson to build a good wagon road and that would do much more good than a railroad from Ashcroft to Quenelle, which is now talked of. There is a great deal of fallen timber that makes travel difficult. Next year, I expect Col. Wright will take out $30,000 or $40,000, for so far they have simply been preparing for a clean-up. This statement gives an idea of the comparative cost of roadmaking west and east of the mountains.

FORT LIARD.

A letter from R. N. Scott, of the Laraway party of Cowanville, Quebec, dated from Fort Liard on July 31st, is published in the eastern press. The Laraway party had joined forces with parties from Los Angeles, Nova Scotia and Montreal, twenty men in all. They expected to reach Hellgate on the Liard by August 1st and winter there. They had found good prospects of fine gold, 50 colors to the pan, which was estimated to be good for $10 a day. They were well pleased with their progress and prospects. The members of the Laraway party are Messrs. Laraway, R. N. Scott, two Wells Bros., Gilman Westover of Sutton, Chas. Berlier of Brome Corner, and Prentiss of North Sutton.

NEW YUKON STRIKES.

Recent returned prospectors report to the Vancouver World good placer strikes on the Dalton trail. The creeks are named McKinley and Porcupine. Two men took out $30 in five hours and two other men took out $360 in 14 hours. There are 25 claims taken on the two creeks.

A new creek has been struck in the Atlin lake district, which yielded $2.75 to the pan. It is named Bonanza and is a tributary of Otter Creek. About 75 claims have been staked on this creek.

S. M. Fontaine brings $300 of gold, taken from a small tributary of the Hootolake. He took out 17 ounces of coarse gold in five days and is going back next year.

Another strike has been made about 100 miles from English lake.

Good reports are also brought from Stewart river itself.

If the Stikine railway deal had gone through these several strikes would have been blanketed by Mackenzie and Mann, in addition to everything that was worth having around the Klondike.
